

Protect your health: Get screened for colorectal cancer

Colorectal cancer is the second-leading cause of cancer deaths in the U.S. Most of those deaths could have been prevented with early detection.

Early detection saves lives.

If you're 45 years or older, or have a family history of colon cancer, talk to your primary care provider about the screening method that's best for you.

By scheduling your colorectal cancer screening, you're investing in your health to help ensure a brighter future for yourself and your loved ones. Don't let fear or procrastination stand in the way of your well-being. Take control of your health today and schedule your screening appointment.
