

Badger Hollow Wind Energy Center

The Badger Hollow Wind Energy Center is a proposed 118-megawatt (MW) wind power generation facility in Iowa and Grant Counties, Wisconsin, targeted to begin operating in 2027. Wind technology delivers clean, reliable, and affordable power from one of the oldest known energy sources and today is helping to modernize America's energy grid.

This [project] will pay car payments, college tuition payments and home mortgages for children, grandchildren and great grandchildren for a number of years to come, because there's a revenue stream that connects it back to the farm and the family.
