

Strong leadership drives strong systems.
 Strong systems prepare students for their future.

AVID is reintroducing the Strategic Leadership for College and Career Readiness (SLCCR) Community of Practice at AVID Summer Institute™. This offering supports district and school leaders in strengthening the leadership systems, structures, and conditions necessary to ensure that every student is prepared for college and career success.

What Is SLCCR?

SLCCR brings together district and site leadership teams of three or more—including district and site administrators, instructional leaders, AVID Site Coordinators, and teacher leaders—for a structured learning experience focused on systems, leadership behaviors, and conditions that support sustainable college and career readiness efforts. Teams will walk away with immediately usable, site-specific strategies connected directly to implementation goals.

This Community of Practice is open to both AVID partners and non-partners, creating an entry point for new districts as well as deeper system-level alignment for existing partners.

Purpose and Focus

SLCCR equips leadership teams to:

- Apply a clear leadership theory of action to guide decision-making.
- Examine beliefs, behaviors, and conditions that impact campus culture and student opportunity.
- Build systems that strengthen organizational coherence and support effective implementation efforts.
- Identify and address barriers that hinder schoolwide college and career readiness.
- Engage in focused planning to develop immediate, actionable next steps for their site or district.
