

Our Culture of Attorney Learning And Development

MoFo is committed to you. You will join a community with a culture of attorney learning and development, beginning as a summer associate and continuing throughout your career.

At MoFo, you will find that our partners love our firm and they work closely with associates to infuse the MoFo culture into all aspects of the attorney and client experience. Our whole firm is committed to your satisfaction with your work and life as an attorney, and keeping MoFo a great place to learn and grow. Join us and see!

A targeted and level-based approach to learning

Tailored training in your substantive field from internal and external experts;

Skill-building courses tailored to your field, ranging from negotiation and deposition skills to trial advocacy for litigators and doing deals and drafting documents for business lawyers; and

Interactive learning on the soft skills of navigating how to be a lawyer, building your leadership and management skills, and setting your path for success and happiness.

Professional development coaching

Our team of talented, certified coaches will complement your learning opportunities with individualized, proactive professional development coaching to help you every step of the way.

Leadership

The Learning & Development team is led by Amy Tenney Curren, a former law school assistant dean and professor and a former partner at another global law firm who is passionate about optimizing the attorney experience.
