

Itchy Dog Vet Prep Checklist

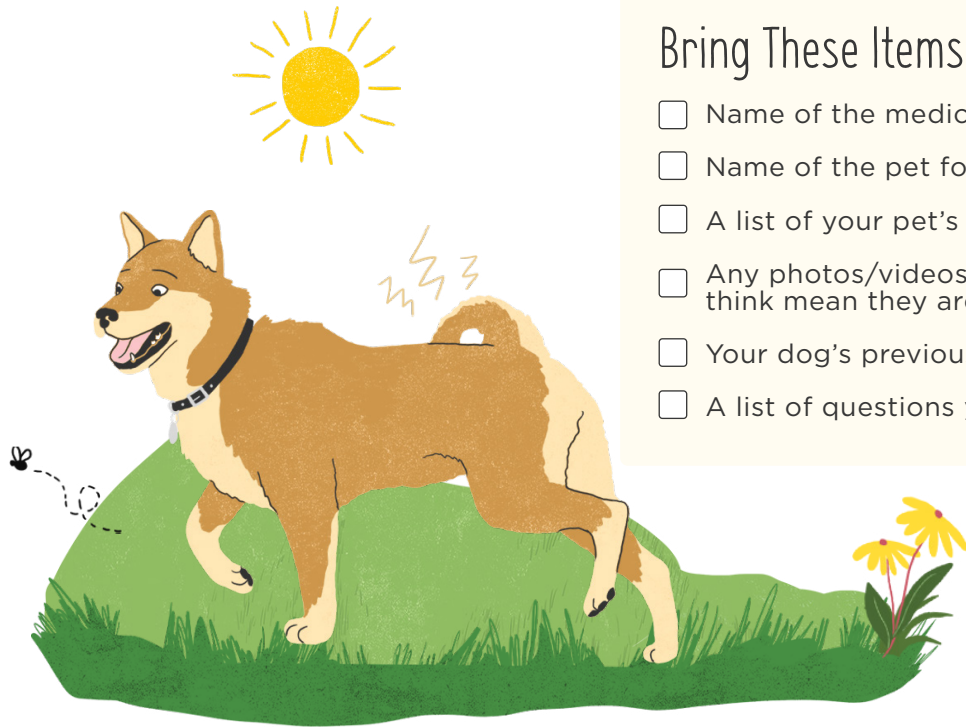

If you're taking your itchy dog to the vet, here are some helpful ways to make the most out of your visit.

Be Prepared to Answer Questions Like:

- ☐ When did you first notice your dog itching? How long has it been going on?
- ☐ Where on their body do they itch, scratch, or lick the most?
- ☐ Does your dog itch more during certain seasons, or is it the same all year long?
- ☐ Are all the pets in your household currently on a flea and tick preventative?
- ☐ If yes, what is the name of the product and when was it last administered?
- ☐ Are they currently on any other itch medications? What products have you tried in the past?
- ☐ What food and treats are they currently eating?
- ☐ Are there any new food, treats, or other changes to their environment?
- ☐ What food and treats have you fed them in the past?
- ☐ When was their last bath and how frequently do you bath them?
- ☐ Are any other pets or people in your home itchy?

Bring These Items With You:

- ☐ Name of the medication(s) they're currently taking and a photo of the prescription label(s)
- ☐ Name of the pet food(s) they're currently eating and a photo of the nutrition label(s)
- ☐ A list of your pet's signs
- ☐ Any photos/videos you have of your pet itching, scratching, licking, or showing signs you think mean they are itchy
- ☐ Your dog's previous medical history (if this is a new vet)
- ☐ A list of questions you have for the vet relating to your pet's skin health and itch
