ELAINE BROWN

CHAIRWOMAN ON THE THRONE

Elaine Brown (born March 2, 1943) is an American prison activist, writer, and singer. She was also a Black Panther Party chairwoman.

Elaine grew up in Philadelphia. Her mother, Dorothy Clark, worked hard to provide for Elaine's private schooling, music lessons, and nice clothing. As a kid, she studied piano and ballet for many years. She graduated from Philadelphia High School for Girls, a public school for young women, and she studied at Temple University.

After leaving Temple University, Elaine moved to Los Angeles, California, to write songs.

During her time in California, Elaine became involved with the Black Liberation Movement. She became involved in politics and began working for the newspaper Harambee. She led groups of Black students, in California. In April 1968, after the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., she attended her first meeting of Los Angeles' Black Panther Party.

During her time with the Black Panther Party, Elaine helped to create the Black Panther Party's initial Free Busing to Prisons Program, Free Legal Aid Program, and the Free Breakfast for Children program in Los Angeles. It's said that the Free Breakfast for School Children program was one of the most important things that the Black Panther Party created.

In 1969, a large group of children sat down to a free breakfast before school. There were many things on the menu, that looked like our school lunches today: chocolate milk, eggs, bacon, cereal, fruit and more.

However, this breakfast wasn't served by a school cafeteria. Instead, breakfast was served thanks to the Black Panther Party (BPP). The Black Panther Party was a revolutionary political organization founded by Bobby Seale and Huey Newton in October 1966 in Oakland, California. They had a message of Black power and a commitment to ending the struggle of Black Americans. One of their most important contributions to The Civil Rights Movement was their BPP Breakfast Program.

"The children, many of whom had never eaten breakfast before the Panthers started their program," the Sun Reporter wrote, "think the Panthers are 'groovy' and 'very nice' for doing this for them."

The Free Breakfast for School Children program began in January 1969 and within weeks it went from feeding a handful of kids to hundreds. The program was simple: people went to local grocery stores to ask for donations, they asked food specialists about healthy breakfast options, and cooked and served breakfast for free!

School officials immediately reported results in kids who had free breakfast before school. They stated that many students involved in the Free Breakfast for School Children program were more engaged in class and happier.

BLACK PANTHERS' BREAKFAST PROGRAM

THE IMPACT OF BROWN AND BREAKFAST

Elaine Brown continues to fight for the civil rights of African-American people. From 1995 to the present, she has given speeches at more than forty colleges and universities, as well as numerous conferences.

At its peak, the Black Panther Party fed thousands of children per day in at least 45 programs. The Black Panther Party's breakfast program pushed the United States government to expand its own school food programs to feed children before school.
