A RARE Amur tiger has just had three cubs at Toronto Zoo.

Tigress Mazy and the cubs are all doing well and staff at the zoo are using remote cameras inside the tigers' den to keep an eye on them.

WOW!

A BOTTLE of wine that spent 14 months in space could fetch $1m after going up for sale. It even comes with a corkscrew made from a meteorite!

VOLCANO FOR SALE!

AN area of land that includes an erupting volcano is up for sale in Iceland.

The plot of land includes Geldingadalir, an active volcano that has been erupting on and off since March. Even though owning a volcano sounds like something only a supervillain would want, there has been a lot of interest in the land. The chairman of the association that owns the land joked: "This must be the hottest land in the country right now."

What would you do if you owned a volcano?!

SHOCK PLANE BIRTH

A WOMAN who went into labour on a flight to Hawaii had a stroke of luck when it turned out a doctor and three neonatal nurses, who look after newborns, were on board as well.

Lavinia Mounga didn't even know she was pregnant until she began to have her baby! When the plane landed, baby Raymond and his mum were taken to hospital. They are both doing well.

A VEST worn by Michael Jordan has sold for $1.38m.

Basketball legend Jordan wore it during his second season playing for the University of North Carolina.

The bid at auction is more than three times the record set last year for another of the basketball legend's jerseys.
