WINNING TWINS

MORE twins are being born than ever before, says a new study.

It's believed that almost one in 40 children are twins. The rise of better technology in developed countries has helped, making it easier for women to have multiple births. North America, Europe and Asia are among the places that have seen the biggest rise in twins. The study was published in the scientific journal Human Reproduction.

WOW!

Parents tell kids an average of ten little white lies a week, shows a new survey for Aldi's Mami brand. Five of the ten most common lies are used to get kids to eat better.

EARTH HOUR

On 27 March, people all over the world will be switching off their lights for the annual Earth Hour.

- What is Earth Hour? It's the moment millions of people around the world switch off their lights to show they care about the future of our planet.
- When? 20:30 local time, Saturday 27 March
- Where? Globally
- Why? Joining Earth Hour's switch-off reminds us all that even small actions can make a big difference for our planet. By working together, we're helping to raise our voices so that businesses and governments can't ignore us.

NEW ZEALAND WIN

The Emirates Team New Zealand crew celebrate their victory against Luna Rossa Prada Pirelli in race ten to win the 36th America's Cup.

FUEL FROM FOOD!

The US alone uses more than 95 billion litres of jet fuel per year

SCIENTISTS in the US have found a way to make jet fuel from food waste.

An American scientific report shows that using the fatty acids in food waste to create a sustainable aviation fuel (SAF) could lead to a 165% reduction in greenhouse gas emissions, compared to the fossil fuels that planes use at the moment.
