Stacking Kong

About

In Stacking Kong you drop blocks to create a tower. The higher the tower, the higher the prize. It features the Blockchain™ mechanic.

Game Rules

Playing

- Press the start button to play the game.
- Select your bet size from the stake options.
- The information bar will display your current bet size and current balance.
- The number of blocks remaining and current win are shown on screen.
- Turn on turbo mode to play out the game faster (where applicable).

Blockchain™ Mechanic

- Each game starts with 9 blocks. A series of 9 randomly selected blocks fall into the playing area and stack on top of each other.
- Reaching a level with +2 blocks adds an extra 2 blocks to the total blocks which are then dropped on the top of the tower.
- Reaching a level with a cash prize awards a win. Only the highest prize reached is awarded.
- The game ends when no blocks remain or the top level is reached.

Extra block purchases

- When all blocks in the base game have been dropped the player can choose to purchase extra blocks to continue the game.
- All blocks below the top two rows are blocked out for extra block purchases.
- 1, 2 or 3 blocks can be purchased with the associated prices of each displayed on the buttons.
- Extra block purchases are only offered where an improved win is possible and where the potential win is greater than the purchase price.
- The total staked so far is displayed in the information bar.

Return to Player

- The overall theoretical return to player is 94.38%
- Extra block purchase theoretical return to player is 94.34%

Randomization

- Blocks are selected randomly from a weighted list of predefined shapes. The same weights are used in the base game and extra block purchases.
- Blocks always drop into the lowest point possible.

Additional Information

- If a player's game is interrupted during play, they may continue the game round after restarting the game within 24 hours after interruption.
- After that time, any winnings from an interrupted game will be added to the player's account.
