

2025 NCAA Outdoor Track & Field Championships

Thursday, June 12, 2025
Hayward Field (Eugene, Ore.)

Hanna Mole, Washington (Pole Vault Champion)

"It feels great, it's just my hope that either one of us takes it home, so that fact that was me was a very exciting day. It was just my day, I was on. I've really worked hard all season."

"I'll be honest my 4.39 — it was on the third attempt, so it was very close. I wasn't on today, all day, it wasn't a perfect meet, it never is but I think I cleaned it up at the end."

"It was great (breaking the record). An outdoor PR, so I cannot not be happy with that."

Chloe Timberg, Rutgers (Pole Vault, Second Place)

"There was a lot of sitting in between (attempts), once it got rolling it was definitely easier, making those little adjustments."

"A lot of skipping, a lot of passing, a lot of third attempts made. Just taking those risks knowing that the one bar wouldn't have done me much good. So just trying to jump through those next height attempts to hopefully preserve some energy."

Amanda Mole, Washington (Pole Vault, Third Place)

"Definitely a little frustrated, it wasn't my best competition. How I was coming in, I'm really proud of how I was able to compete today because I wasn't fully confident today. I didn't have the best practice before this."

"I'm obviously so happy for Hanna today, so overall, it was a really good day."
