

2025 NCAA Outdoor Track & Field Championships

Friday, June 13, 2025
Hayward Field (Eugene, Ore.)

Quincy Watts, USC Ted Banks Director of Track & Field and Cross Country

“It’s just great to be in these kind of battles. You go in one way and you’re thinking that you have this many points, and this many bullets, and you’re in a good space but you always as a coach in the back of your mind you say okay, I got to be prepared for the unexpected. And we were.”

“This team, these student-athletes, they just did a fantastic job staying focused and doing everything these last couple of days.”

“They’re champions and I’m just so proud of everyone, the student-athletes, the staff, just everybody. Teamwork makes the dream work.”

Nathan Green, Washington (1,500 Champion)

“I feel really good, it was a little bit slower, it was a little bit messy, a little bit this of this and a little bit of that. It all just came down to that final 80 meters and it was just a battle of wills. It means a lot because it’s my last NCAA race. I’ve won this event before and winning a second time, it means a lot.”

“That makes Washington the most dominant 1,500 and mile program in history and anyone who says otherwise can go check the facts.”

“It means a lot, I’ve worked really hard to get here and the people in my corner who don’t get to hold the trophy necessarily, this is for them.”
