- III. Governance Frameworks and Practical Solutions: How organizations can navigate these constraints
- IV. Pathways for Harmonised Cyber Defence: Global cooperation and Standards harmonization
- V. Questions and Answers
- VI. Closing Remarks

Cyber Defence vs. Data Localization

- Cyber threats are global and fast-moving.
- Effective cyber defence depends on real-time cross-border data sharing (e.g., threat intelligence, logs, incident data) to detect, contain, and remediate attacks.
- Data localization, privacy, and sovereignty laws increasingly restrict data flows.
- Multinational companies face conflicting obligations: share data to protect systems / data OR limit transfers to comply with law?
- Core tension: under-sharing increases cyber risk BUT over-sharing increases regulatory, enforcement, and litigation risk.

Governance Frameworks & Practical Solutions

- Establish strong data governance
 - Know what data must stay in-country vs. what can be shared.
 - Focus on how data is accessed, protected, and audited (alongside where it is stored).
- Enable secure sharing through controls
 - Use encryption, tokenization, anonymization to share actionable security intelligence without exposing sensitive data.
- Leverage emerging technical solutions
 - Adopt privacy-enhancing technologies (PETs).
 - Consider regionally coordinated cloud or “data lake” models.
- Operationalize compliance in processes and vendors
 - Build localization considerations into incident response plans.
 - Ensure third-party vendors support in-country or region-specific deployment.
