Lockerbie: A Search for Truth

On 21st December 1988, 259 passengers and crew were killed when Pan Am Flight 103 exploded over Lockerbie 38 minutes after take-off, with a further 11 residents losing their life as the plane came down over the quiet, Scottish town.

In the wake of the disaster and his daughter's death, Dr Jim Swire (Colin Firth), is nominated spokesperson for the UK victims' families, who have united to demand truth and justice. Travelling across continents and political divides, Jim embarks on a relentless journey that not only jeopardises his stability, family and life, but completely overturns his trust in the justice system. As the truth shifts under Jim's feet, his view of the world is left forever changed.

Exploring events from the disaster and its aftermath, Lockerbie: A Search for Truth provides an intimate account of a man, a husband, and a father who risks everything in memory of his daughter and the unflinching pursuit of truth and justice.

The Death of Bunny Munro

This six-part Sky Original adaptation of Nick Cave's novel The Death of Bunny Munro sees BAFTA and Emmy-nominated actor Matt Smith star in the titular role.

Following his wife Libby's suicide, sex addict, door-to-door beauty product salesman and self-professed lothario Bunny Munro finds himself saddled with a young son and only a loose concept of parenting. Together with nine-year-old Bunny Junior he embarks on an epic and increasingly out-of-control road trip across Southern England as the two struggle to contain their grief in very different ways.

As Bunny bounces from one sales pitch to the next, trying to seduce any woman he meets, Bunny Junior kills time talking to the ghost of his mother and distracting himself from the dawning realisation that his dad isn't just fallible—he's a complete mess. As he starts to unravel, Bunny realises he must do something to rescue his son from his own outdated notions of what it is to be a man. The Death of Bunny Munro is both a wild cautionary tale and a tender portrait of a father and son.,

Dart Kings

In 1972, darts staggered out of the pub and onto British primetime television, bringing with it a cast of – by today’s standards – unlikely sporting heroes. Today, discipline is key to sporting success but in those first moments when the game hit the bigtime, the greatest players mixed extraordinary skill at the oche with boozing, chain-smoking, and an open-door policy to fans and the media alike. Yet it was this combination of skill and raw, unfiltered personality that brought in television audiences of more than 10 million and created some of the most memorable characters in sporting history.

Against a backdrop of rising unemployment and unrest in 1980s Britain, darts brought entertainment and energy to British audiences. Join us as we explore the incredible journeys of three of the greatest names in darts, charting their rise, rivalries, heartache, and triumphs through the '70s, '80s and '90s.

The series features candid interviews with the darts stars of their day including “The King of Bling” Bobby George, John Lowe, Keith Deller, Bob Anderson, Dennis Priestley, Dave Whitcombe, Linda Duffy, Maureen Flowers alongside commentary from Richard Ashdown, Julie Welch, Peter Purves, infamous sports promoter Barry Hearn and the legend that is Phil “The Power” Taylor.

Flight 149

On August 2nd, 1990, Saddam Hussein takes the world by surprise and invades Kuwait. Four hours later, BA Flight 149 from London Heathrow lands in Kuwait City for a scheduled stop. Saddam broadcasts to the world that the 400 passengers are now his hostages.

Over four months, an extraordinary hostage thriller unfolds, as the unsuspecting passengers and crew become pawns caught up with a ruthless dictator, a plane full of spies, a British government cover-up and a surprising cameo from Richard Branson. UK authorities still deny what happened on that flight. Only now are they being forced to admit the truth.

Atomic

Atomic is a dynamic and entertaining action-fuelled adventure. When Max (Alfie Allen) and Mohammed (Shazad Latif), two unlikely friends – and even less likely heroes – become swept up in a cartel's plot to transport uranium across North Africa, they face a monumental decision: save themselves or risk everything to prevent a nuclear bomb getting into the wrong hands.

Max, a free-spirited drug trafficker, is making runs through the Middle East. Meanwhile Mohammed, a man haunted by his past and on the run from those determined to kill him, is hiding out in the deserts of North Africa, unable to return home to the UK. Desperate for redemption, their paths converge in the Libyan desert as they are swept up in a nefarious Venezuelan cartel's plot to transport uranium capable of fueling a nuclear bomb.

With the fate of humanity in their backpacks, they grapple with a desperate choice: save themselves or save humanity? Pursued by Cassie Elliott (Samira Wiley) – a highly skilled CIA agent whose life mission is to prevent terrorists from acquiring a nuclear bomb – along with MI6 and a network of traffickers, Max and Mohammed find themselves in the absurd situation of, for once, having to be the good guys.

Atomic is an adrenaline-charged, cinematic five-episode odyssey through the labyrinthine medinas and bustling metropolises of North Africa, across inhospitable deserts and hostile borders, where Max and Mohammed – with their lively, funny and unexpected camaraderie – wonder whether some kind of atonement is possible amidst the madness.

7/7: The London Bombings

Produced by Blast Films, a Sky Studios company, this incisive and layered series will unpick the events of one of the worst terrorist attacks suffered on British soil. With unprecedented access to those closest to the story - many of whom have never spoken before - this series will reveal a gripping and alternative account of the 7/7 bombings. Three perspectives will be told in parallel: that of the investigators desperately hunting for answers; the ordinary civilians embroiled in the attacks; and the unheard voices from those closely connected to the perpetrators. New revelations about the bombers' personal histories and motivations will provide a deeper, historical insight into what led to their radicalisation as well as the complex social, moral and political backdrop that underpinned the tragedy. Understanding why and how 7/7 happened will form a crucial part of the series' narrative.

First-person testimony combined with raw, unseen archive builds a compelling narrative that follows the Police and Counter Terror investigation - from the first blast and frantic hunt for intel on the bombers to the failed second attack that followed 2 weeks later. This ignited Britain's biggest ever manhunt and, as police came under pressure to capture the suicide bombers amongst rising panic and racial tension, resulted in the police shooting of Jean Charles De Menezes after he was wrongly identified as a suspect. Weaving together the story of radicalisation in Britain and the geopolitical context - told, for the first time, by those with close and intimate connections - will provide the most definitive account of 7/7.

Joe Lycett's United States of Birmingham

It's no secret that Joe Lycett adores Brum, but his hometown is having a tough time of it. In his self-appointed role as the second city's ambassador and with the blessing of the actual Lord Mayor of Birmingham, everyone's favourite comedy activist is on a mission to put Birmingham firmly back on the map – in fact, all over the map.

To do that, Joe is heading to North America, the global destination for multiple Brums, home to no fewer than eighteen Birminghams, stretching from Canada's Saskatchewan province, down the East Coast, through the Midwest and into the Deep South. Joe will explore their history, their collective Brummie cultural commonalities and form official 'Friendship Agreements' with as many US Birminghams as he can. As the climax of the series, Joe will invite some of his new Brummie chums back to his own Birmingham for what will doubtless become an annually bostin global event – the International Day of Birmingham.

Mussolini: Son of the Century (w/t)

Directed by BAFTA-winning Joe Wright (Darkest Hour, Atonement, Cyrano), the series is based on the Premio Strega-winning and international bestselling book by Antonio Scurati, which chronicles the birth of fascism in Italy and the Duce Benito Mussolini's rise to power. Award-winning actor Luca Marinelli, who is among the most respected actors in Italy, will lead the cast as Benito Mussolini.

Like the eponymous novel, the series will tell the history of a country that surrendered to dictatorship, and the story of a man who was able to rise from his ashes time and again. The eight-part series will cover the period from the founding of Fasci Italiani in 1919 through to Mussolini's infamous speech in parliament following the murder of socialist MP Giacomo Matteotti in 1925. The series will also provide viewers with an insight into Mussolini and his personal relationships, including with his wife Rachele, his lover Margherita Sarfatti, and with other iconic figures from the time.

Written by Stefano Bises (Gomorrah, The New Pope, ZeroZeroZero, Speravo de mori prima) and Davide Serino (1992, 1993, Il Re - The king, Exterior Night), with the series outline by Stefano Bises, Davide Serino and Antonio Scurati, the series will tell the events with historical accuracy, with every event, character, dialogue and speech documented or witnessed by multiple sources.

The soundtrack is composed by Tom Rowlands, also known for being part of the British electronic music duo The Chemical Brothers, pioneers who brought big beat to the forefront of pop culture, topping charts worldwide. They are multi-award winners, with 6 Grammy Awards, 1 Brit Award, 1 MTV Europe Music Award, and 1 NME Award.
