

COVID-19 Cancellation policy

Current Students

Standard Terms and Conditions apply, OR in case of temporary closure:

Tuition:

Students will continue studies online through the center in which they are registered

Accommodation:

Students will continue living in their originally-booked accommodation.

Students having to isolate/quarantine during their stay

If, for any reason, a student is directed by the local public health authorities to isolate/quarantine due to possible contact with a COVID-positive individual or having tested positive themselves, the following will apply:

Tuition:

Students will continue studies online through the center in which they are registered

Accommodation:

Students may be asked to move to alternate accommodation to ensure that they are able to follow the local guidelines for self-isolating and quarantining, which could incur additional costs over and above the original accommodation booking. These costs will be met at the student's own expense.

There are no refunds or credits applied should a student miss any part of the original accommodation package.

If a student is required to self-isolate/quarantine for a period after their course has terminated, or wishes to quarantine before their course begins, any additional accommodation booking will be at the student's own expense.

Other expense may apply, such as food, private COVID testing, transfers.

Students may return to the originally-booked accommodation once the local health authorities advise they can safely do so.

All students before arrival

Standard terms and Conditions apply OR

In the case of temporary school closure where a local or regional outbreak of COVID-19 places a clear restriction on inbound or outbound travel:

Tuition:

Courses will be postponed to a future session date of the student's choosing

Accommodation:

No charges for changed or cancelled accommodation
