

Post-Meeting Takeaways

State-of-the-Art Clinical Symposium [SOTA]

ACR
Education Exchange
APRIL 28–30, 2023 • ORLANDO, FLORIDA

Thank you for making the State-of-the-Art Clinical Symposium [SOTA] at ACR Education Exchange 2023 a huge success. The meeting featured world-class lectures, panel discussions, and valuable educational clinical content with networking opportunities and interactive sessions.

Your fellow SOTA participants have identified the following key takeaways from the symposium:

- Information on evidence-based treatment options for patients with rheumatic diseases
- Knowledge on the importance of diversity, equity, and inclusion in global health practices
- Opportunities for educational enrichment and valuable information for fellows in rheumatology
- Professional development for academic rheumatologists

Feedback on the 2023 meeting:

“This conference provided knowledge on the most up-to-date, evidence-based treatments for many of the diseases we treat in rheumatology. The Challenging Case series was very concise and well presented. The topic of vasculitis, in particular, provided valuable knowledge on best practices to implement as a provider.”

“I especially enjoyed The Great Debate session and learned a tremendous amount on topic areas. This included lupus nephritis, ILD in systemic sclerosis, and diagnostic evaluation in GCA. I also enjoyed the inflammatory eye disease lecture.”

“Education Exchange is always invaluable to talk about best practices with training programs. The DEI information I found particularly helpful this year.”

“Updated guidelines and new therapeutic agents to help guide treatment and good clinical outcomes for patients.”

Additional Resources for Continued Learning

Visit the ACR website for upcoming in-person and virtual events and online courses.

Join us November 10-15 for ACR Convergence 2023 in San Diego, California.