

CONFIDENTIALITY AGREEMENT

It is the policy of the American College of Rheumatology (“ACR”) that members of its committees, subcommittees, task forces, special projects, and working groups, etc., as part of their fiduciary duty to the ACR, maintain the confidentiality of the information provided to them in carrying out their duties and responsibilities. It is also the policy of the ACR that all members of its committees, task forces and working groups, upon becoming a member, sign an agreement confirming their understanding of their responsibilities to maintain the confidentiality of the information provided to them in carrying out their duties and responsibilities.

To that end, the undersigned, in consideration of the undersigned’s appointment to and participation in _____
(name of committee, subcommittee, special projects, task force, working groups, and etc.) agrees to hold in confidence, not to directly or indirectly disclose, disseminate, divulge, publish, report, reveal or transfer the confidential information made available to the member to any person or entity without the approval of the ACR and not directly or indirectly make use of any confidential information except for the purposes of carrying out his/her responsibilities as a member (name of committee, subcommittee, task force, etc.).
